Daily Bible School Planned At Grape Grove

The annual Daily Vacation Bible school at the Grape Grove Church of Christ will commence on Monday morning, June 12, and will run through each week day except Saturday until Friday, June 23. The organization for this popular school is practically completed. Some fifteen men and women will be teaching and working in this school. Several others will be driving their cars to pick up the children and bring them to the school and take them home again at noon.

This week a canvassing committee is canvassing every house within several miles of the church to enlist all the children from age four and up to come to the school. Parents can help the church and help their families a great deal by cooperating in encouraging their children to attend and in getting them ready for school on time. The church bus or cars will pick them up and bring them home. If any families who want their children to attend happen to be missed or are outside the territory canvassed, they may make arrangements by getting in touch with the minister of the church, Kenneth T. Norris.

The church at Grape Grove is happy to offer this service of teaching the Bible to all the children of the community and surrounding district.

Warn Poisonous Mushroom Is In Ohio Woods

False Morel, a poisonous mushroom, is appearing in Ohio woods at this time of year, warns I. C. Toffman, of the department of horticulture at the Ohio agricultural experiment station. It is known to be deadly poisonous, but in some cases the victims have recovered after several days of intense suffering.

This species has a cap 2 to 3 inches broad, rounded, lobed irregular, smooth or "brain-like" shape, and bay-red. The stem, 2 to 2 1/2 inches long is stout, slightly scurfy, stiffer or hollow, whitish and often irregular. It occurs in wet ravines or in spruce places in the vicinity of pine trees, and it is frequently found on sandy soil in May or June. The brain-like wrinkles and the chestnut-red coloring of the cap distinguishing this species from any of the morels, or sponge mushrooms.

There is another poisonous form, the brown gyromitra, which is common in rich woods soil, mostly in beech-leaf mold and appears also in the spring, says Toffman. It is a rich chocolate brown or paler where leaves cover the surface. This is not so inviting to the mushrooms gatherer as the False Morel so it is more likely to be passed up. Its reputation for being poisonous is just as bad. They should be left alone, concludes the horticulturist.

Senior 4-H Camp Dates June 12-17

Greene county 4-H club members 14 years old and over will participate in the district senior 4-H camp to be held at Camp Clifton June 12-17. 4-H club members from Greene, Champaign, Union, Logan, Madison, Fayette, Clinton, and Montgomery counties will participate in the full week of camping along the Clifton gorge, southwest of Clifton.

The program being planned by representatives of the various counties will include discussion periods on nature and conservation, health and safety, international relations with other countries, and living with others. In addition, campers will plan and participate in campfire programs, vespers, sports, swimming, fire arm instruction, folk games and square dancing, and crafts.

Facilities at the 4-H camp include a modern dining hall and kitchen equipped to service 225 campers, 20 large heavy tents which houses 10 to 14 campers in each, a new 45 ft. by 100 ft. blacktop recreational area constructed this spring, and cement floors for girls' tents, which were also completed this spring.

A camp manager, swimming instructor, registered nurse, and extension agents from the eight counties will make up the faculty for this camp.

Registration is between 1 p. m. and 3 p. m. on June 12. The camping period will end Saturday morning, June 17, following breakfast.

Greene county 4-H members planning to attend are urged to send in the enrollment blank with a $1.00 registration fee to the agricultural extension office, post office building, Xenia by June 9. This is necessary in order to insure attendance at the camp because of the large number of counties participating. The total cost of the week of camping is $2.50 per camper.

Students Must Have SS Card for Summer Jobs

Frank Good, field representative of the Dayton office of the social security administration asks this question of all high school students: "Are you going to work during your summer vacation?"

Good, who is in the Xenia post-office building every Monday at 12:30 p. m., said, those students who plan to work on jobs covered by social security should take action now to obtain a social security number. Employers will require them to show their social security cards when they are hired.

Students who have never had a social security number should obtain one when reasonably sure they are going to work. Students who have lost their cards should ask for a duplicate card immediately. The duplicate card will have on it the same number which was assigned on the original card. You only use one social security number during your lifetime. Applications for an original or a duplicate social security card may be obtained at any office of the social security administration.

Hugh A. McNary, Jr., manager of the Dayton social security office, cautions, "It is the employee's responsibility to have this social security card and to show it to his employer the first day on the job. By doing this he is insuring that all wages will be credited to his social security account. An employee's name and number are both required in order to post wages to his account. The amount of wages credited to a social security number determines whether insurance payments may be made to the worker at age 65, or to the survivors of a worker who dies at any age."

32 Receive Degrees at College Rites

Man, to live in a changing world, must have an adequate philosophy, great ethics to guide him and a tie between himself and the Great Personality, according to Rev. John Stanley Harker of Hamilton, who addressed graduates at Cedarville college's annual commencement exercises in the United Presbyterian church Monday night.

Dr. Ira D. Vayhinger, college president, presided at the rites and conferred degrees on 29 students, presented provisional three-year teaching certificates to three others and awarded two honorary doctor of divinity degrees.

Recipients of honorary degrees were Rev. Day Kennedy, pastor of Sugar Creek United Presbyterian church, near Dayton, and Rev. Rodney Thaine Taylor, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Falling Spring, Chambersburg, Pa. Both are Cedarville college graduates and received their ministerial training at Pittsburgh Xenia Theological seminary in Pittsburgh.

Rev. Kennedy, who was graduated from Cedarville in 1928 and from Pittsburgh seminary in 1931, served as pastor of the United Presbyterian church in Mt. Airy, O. before coming to Sugar Creek. He was moderator of the second synod of the U. P. church in 1948 and is now chairman of that synod's committee on evangelism.

Rev. Taylor, who preached the sermon at the college's baccalaureate service Sunday night is the son of Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Taylor of Yellow Springs. Following his graduation from Cedarville college in 1932 he entered the Pittsburgh seminary and graduated from there in 1935. He served United Presbyterian churches in Murfreesville and Swickley, Pa. and was an army chaplain for five years in World War II. He now is an executive in a training unit for prospective chaplains.

Following the processional at the graduation exercises at which candidates for degrees and the college faculty appeared in caps and gowns and college trustees and Cedarville ministers were in the line of march, Rev. Mr. Harker spoke on "Living in a Changing World."

"This is a changing world," he said. It always has been and we hope it never ceases to be. If a man wants to live successfully, he must learn to look inwardly, to develop initiative and to know himself. Man's heaviest responsibility is to keep his own right of independent thinking."

Continuing, Rev. Harker said: "A man must look outwardly. Everyone is his brother's keeper. There must be an interdependence among men. The blessings of this world can only be a reality if we learn the true meaning of Christian brotherhood. There is no hope for our world unless all men become brothers in Christ."

"Man to live triumphantly also must look upward," he concluded. "He must acknowledge God's answer to every problem. He must put his life in the Great Personality of the universe."

Music was furnished by the college mixed chorus, directed by Miss Nancy Bost with Miss Mary Louise Stormont as accompanist. Candidates for degrees were presented by Dean Gilbert Dodd. Membership pins in the rown club, the college's honorary society, were awarded Mrs. Livia Check, William E. Dunlap, Kenneth Wilburn and Daniel L. McNeal.

Degrees were conferred as follows:

Bachelor of science in education—Emory F. Beiries, Cedarville; Maryanna F. Beiries, Cedarville; Walter N. Blatter, Akron; Mrs. Livia Check, Mt. Union, Pa. (magna cum laude); Naomi June Conner, Cedarville; Bill Cunningham, Portsmouth; Charles W. Davis, Bainbridge; William E. Dunlap Hamilton, (cum laude); Wayne Evans, Rio Grande; Donald E. ## Polio Fund Is Reported In Total, $9,511

The campaign to fight polio conducted in Greene county under the chairmanship of Lowell Fess, the county's representative in the legislature, ran to a grand total of $9,511, according to a report made at the end of the week.

This compares with a total of around $6,000 a year ago.

"Decided increases" were noted from every area of the county, Mr. Fess reported.

Sample results of the campaigns are: Jamestown and Bowersville, $298.04 as against $119.50 last year; Cedarville, $194.06 against $58.79 in 1949.

"A huge success," Mr. Fess labels the campaign, expressing his thanks to the March of Dimes committees that took such a lively interest in the canvass for funds.

Listing Legion posts for special appreciation Mr. Fess mentions prominently Wallace Anderson post, Cedarville, and Wilbur Thomas post, Jamestown, and their commanders and workers.

Boy Scouts to Visit Bryan Park Saturday

Boy Scouts of the entire area, with troop leaders and all persons interested in Scouting are invited to attend a meeting at Bryan park, Saturday, June 3.

Dr. Kenneth Hunt, Glen Helen director, and Elwood Stroup, wild life extension director for the state, will be the speakers.

"This is a foul or fair affair," according to the announcement. The meeting will be held indoors should it rain.

A tour of the park will be made. "Uniforms should be worn and there should not be fewer than 200, with as many as 12 Scouts from every troop with its leaders," is the urge.

It is pointed out that US-68 is closed between Old Town and Yellow Springs, and care must be taken to find the right roads to the park.

Safe Driving Is Urged By State Director

T. J. Kauer, director of the Ohio department of highways appealed today to the state pride of all Ohio motorists planning out-of-state vacations this summer.

He compared Ohio's summer tourists to ambassadors upon behavior the state's reputation among its sister states depends. "Whether we like it or not, 'Kauer said, 'citizens of all states judge us by the conduct of the drivers with cars bearing our license plates."

All state traffic officials, it was pointed out, are faced with the problem of out-of-state tourists during the summer. They, like our own officials, want the motorists to return home with a good opinion of their state but the current trend among such officials is to enforce traffic regulations rigidly regardless of the driver's home.

Kauer said that the question of whether the tourist might expect leniency or not should not be the factor influencing his driving habits. His own safety, consideration for the rights of those he is visiting and pride in the license plate his car bears should be the prime reasons for careful, courteous driving.

Kauer also extended a welcome to out-of-state visitors as the annual influx of summer tourists in Ohio picked up momentum. He urged that, as visitors, they exercise courteous, sane driving. "Driving safely is simply insurance that the vacationist, whether an Ohio or out-of-state driver, will have the good time that he wants to have. The main thing is: have a safe trip!"

Will Tell of Broiler Production

The story of the production and marketing of some 70,000 broilers annually will be told by J. Earl McClellan at the "Ohio Chicken of Tomorrow" finals and broiler production meeting at the Poultry building, Ohio State university, June 13, starting at 10 a. m.

Mr. McClellan of McClellan Hatchery and Feed Center operates a dressing plant on Upper Bellbrook pike where more than 170,000 broilers were dressed and marketed last year. At the present time some 35,000 birds are being dressed weekly at the plant. State finals of the chicken-of-tomorrow contest will be held in the forenoon with the best entries from the five districts of the state on exhibit. Awards will be made to district winners.

An Extra Pint To The Gallon

An extra pint of milk with each gallon is about what dairymen can expect from storing grass in the silo instead of field-curing it as hay. Or they can get a bonus of more than a cupful if they cure the hay by storing it moist in the loft and blowing air through it to take out moisture, says the U. S. department of agriculture. This is true when weather is favorable for field curing. In rainy weather the gain from silo storage is greater, because rain at haying time injures field cured hay, but does not harm grass cut for silage.

Jump Fertilizer Rate

Ohio farmers now are applying commercial fertilizers at an average rate of 110 pounds per acre of cropland, which is a gain of 40 pounds per acre in the last six years. J. A. Alpher, extension conservationist, Ohio State university, says each additional three pounds of nitrogen when balanced by the right amounts of phosphorus and potash may produce a bushel of corn.

Mr. Slipper believes the average fertilizer application can be increased at least another 40 to 60 pounds before lack of organic matter in Ohio soils will limit the effect of heavier fertilizer applications. Organic matter increases the water holding capacity of soil, and plants must have their food dissolved in water before it can be used.

This University conservationist recommends a program of rotation cropping, adoption of erosion control measures, and an increased acreage of sod crops along with greater amounts of fertilizer. Another necessary measure is the use of lime on soils which need more calcium to make them ready for clover and alfalfa seedlings.

2-4-D In Corn Fields

There is still a need for corn cultivators although chemical weed sprays may eliminate one or two cultivations according to C. J. Willard of Ohio State university.

Since corn is less injured by early spraying, he states that the field should be treated with one-fourth to one-half pound per acre of 2-4-D as soon as the weed seedlings are well through the ground. Ester formations of 2-4-D should be used at slightly lower rates than amine salts.

However, grasses will not be killed by the spray, nor will some tolerant broad-leaved weeds, such as black nightshade.

Announce Time Delivery Program For Ohio Cream

Farm-produced cream, when delivered to the buying point more than 4 days old, automatically will now be graded and paid for as second grade cream. Known as a "time delivery program," this new policy has been adopted by the butter industry in Ohio. At the present time, the market price on second grade cream is about 5 cents per pound less than that paid for a first grade product.

In operation, the program will work as follows: When a cream producer sells cream, a tag is placed on the can dated with the date on which the sale is made. When the next brings in the can of cream, that same tag is stamped again with the date on which the second delivery is made. If the time interval is more than 4 days, the cream is automatically considered second grade.

Avoid Dampness With Chicks

Late spring chicks are more apt to get coccidiosis than early ones, according to Mahlon Sweet, extension poultry specialist who says this is true because later in the spring there is usually less heat in the brooder house, and the house is not as dry. Dampness often leads to coccidiosis.

Low level feeding of either sulfaquinoxaline or nitrophenol is recommended. This usually prevents a severe outbreak of the disease. Although the chicks may get a light case, which is all right as it enables them to develop an immunity.

Strong concentrations of sulfaquinoxaline or sulfamethazine are recommended for serious outbreaks of coccidiosis.

THIRD DEGREE
(A Short Story)
By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

THE TIME AND PLACE were perfect for a murder. Belcher had considered them both perfectly. He knew that the smallest detail was important. For example, even though it cost him considerable physical pain, he made the trip from Boswell across the desert to Old Man Sommers' shack in the hills on horseback, pushing ahead as fast as he could go. The journey consumed five hours. Thus he knew that even as expert a rider as Sheriff Burdon would take at least four.

Then, a week before the day he had planned his deed, he set off by himself with pack horse and equipment for an extended stay in the hills, telling them at the hotel he was going to explore the Rainy Valley for outcroppings of copper. In stead, he located the samples that he had cached a fortnight before, filled his saddle bags with them and moved on the ridge which overlooked the ravine where Sommers had his cabin.

Sommers was a trusting soul. He looked as though he didn't believe Belcher had come to kill him even when he saw the gun.

Presently there came a day when he saw Joe Bridges, Sommers' partner, set off for town with two pack mules. This meant that Sommers would be alone for two days. Belcher went back to his own camp, packed his things and rode down into the ravine. It was easier than he expected. Sommers was a trusting soul. He looked as though he didn't believe Belcher had come to kill him even when he saw the gun.

When the deed was done, Belcher pressed the dead man's fingers against the gun and placed the weapon a few feet away from where the old man lay. Then he stripped off the gloves he had worn, burned them in the stove and stirred the ashes into those made by the wood fire. Then he called Sheriff Burdon.

"By gum!" explained the officer when Belcher had finished his recital, "You don't say! Suicide, eh? Well, I'll be out. You just hang around till I get there, Belcher."

He went to the fireplace and removed the stone behind which he knew Sommers kept his cache of gold. His eyes gleamed, but as he lifted out the sack, twenty thousand if there's a dime! For a moment he stood there, his mind conjuring vivid pictures of the pleasures this money was going to bring. Then he closed the sack, knotted the opening securely and went outside.

When Belcher returned to the shack the sun had dipped behind the nearest of the surrounding peaks. The building was in shadow and it was gloomy inside. Belcher glanced at his watch. Two hours had passed. Burdon couldn't arrive for two more at best.

Returning to his chair he fell on the cold, lifeless form of Sommers. He stopped short. It had moved! Its head was pointed away from the wall instead of toward it. No, he remembered now. He had turned it that way. Of course. The wind howled dully outside. The door something moved. Belcher leaped to his feet. It was the sheriff! But when he flung wide the door the space beyond was deserted. He banged the door shut and leaned against it. He was breathing heavily.

Something struck the side of the cabin. Again it struck. Like a tapping. As though some one were there, tapping for admission. Sweat broke out on Belcher's forehead. "It's a tree. The wind is brushing a tree against the cabin." Then suddenly the tapping ceased, and Belcher remembered there was no tree anywhere around.

The wind suddenly struck the cabin a terrific blow. It moaned and shrieked and laughed. Belcher heard voices. He caught himself assuming an attitude of listening. The coyote howled. The voices danced about the room giving the illusion that the corpse of Sommers was wriggling on the floor. Involuntary Belcher screamed. Sweat poured from his face. The wind screamed again. A voice howled: "Ha, ha, ha! Murderers never get away with it!"

"Shut up!" Belcher shrieked. "Shut up! Nobody says you do it!" Then he clapped a hand across his mouth, realizing the wind had tricked him into saying this.

He was trembling when he sat down. Strange fancies were passing before his vision. The tapping began again. The wind moaned. The coyote howled. The voices laughed and mocked. Terror and desperation came to Belcher's eyes.

"Well, the way I figure it," Sheriff Burdon was saying to the deputy "we never would 'a' been able to prove he done it. I ain't no city cop and I ain't got fingerprint gads and stuff. But Belcher ain't no westerner either, and he couldn't stand up under my own personal way of third-degreeing a jigger."

MEET THE FOLKS

Blanche Packard, 85, (elephant to you) is with Cole Bros circus. . . . Hope wants to cancel his $15,000-a-week radio contract to accept one on television at $40,000. Anybody in the audience like to pick up his radio job? . . . Howard Johnson now has 286 restaurants and Joe Hart has run his first nickel in the Pickin' Chicken business to a million dollars, plus tax. . . . Priscilla Buckley paid Lloyds $4 to insure against shooting a hole-in-one at golf for $400. She shot one! . . . Henry Bush, the Western Reserve college prof., spent $18,274 in his race for nomination for U. S. senator on the Democratic ticket. Let's see, what is the salary of a senator? . . . If you have tears prepare to shed them for Gifford Messerly, 11' 10" of Gil fish with a seine and is spending 275 days in jail. But you'd approve of their letting him fish out through the bars with a pin hook, wouldn't you, just to put in the time? . . . And there's Betty Hutton, in case you don't know, whose income is $260,000 a year, and she wants to get married again, but of course there won't be any man who would marry the gal just on account of the money!

NAMING NAMES

Ann Harding, screenissimo, had an operation for a broken nose. A fellow told a doctor: "Doc, I had my nose broken in three places; what'll I do? And the doctor said: "You'd better keep away from that kind of places!" David Winsor, the used-to-be king, is writing his memoirs for Life magazine. There are a lot of pictures of "me" in it, if you like that sort of thing, Bessie, "the woman I love," says wrinkleless.

Alger Hiss has 80 lines in the latest issue of "Who's Who," but Truman has only 28. "Henry J." was winner in the name contest for the government-sponsored automobile. A stockholder has brought suit, charging that Mars Henry had enough personal publicity with one car named for him.

Dr. Wigan, health adviser, says people worry less on a full stomach. A couple of boys in a strawberry patch constitute a worrisome cornucopia.

BIGGER CORN CROPS

Champaign county, our neighbor to the north, proposes to prove to the world that it can produce 300 bushels of corn to the acre. It will be done by careful selection of varieties, correct cultivation and scientific methods all along the row. We wouldn't want to put so much as a tiny jimson weed in the way of this noble enterprise, but while we're on the subject we'd like to ask if they have arranged for the ground to put the bins on when the government stores it?

NON-POLITICAL

The president on his non-political tour of the country at your expense told the folks the Taft-Hartley law must be repealed as it is evil; that the "privileged few" must be done away with somehow; that we must have a new farm law; that equal opportunities for all must be provided, and that we must help less fortunate families. It'll take several non-political tours to bring all that to pass.

IT'S ALL COLD

Plagued by the cold war, USA has been counting on its fingers and finds that it takes $100,000,000 to equip one armored division—and we have to have 10 of them! We need 20 infantry divisions, with a cost total that sends the cold war into a shiver down Uncle Sam's backbone. It takes a lot of cold cash to fight a cold war.

PREPOSTEROUS

Joe Ferguson vs. Bob Taft! Preposterous! Certainly, even Joe Ferguson has a right to run for the U. S. Senate; anybody has that right. But can you imagine voting for Joe Ferguson in preference to Senator Taft? Joe says he will win by a half million votes? Whose and why?

CALCULATIONS

Some astronomers have just got done counting and announce that there are a billion stars in the Milky Way. Now they are figuring out the tax on the space between them and the earth.

THE REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

THE KEY, ROBERT H. HARPER
Micah's Hope of God's Salvation
Lesson: Micah 4: 1-5; 5: 2-4; 7: 18-20

Memory Selection: Micah 7: 18

MICAH first gives us a view of the coexisting church, to which all peoples shall come by and by. We note that men shall bend their swords and spears into ploughshares and pruning hooks, and nations shall learn of war no more. This prophecy is similar to one by Isaiah. Did Micah copy from Isaiah, or Isaiah from Micah? Or did both copy from an older prophecy? We do not know.

War having been done away, men shall be free to develop the arts of peace and the cultivation of brotherhood, under the name and blessing of Jehovah. This is a beautiful picture of a warless world—a picture often seen in the imagination of men, but not yet realized.

The coming of Jesus of Nazareth, it was prophesied, would have much to contribute to the realization of peace. The reader may remember that Micah 5: 2 was quoted by the Jewish authorities when they were asked by Herod where Christ should be born, according to prophecy.

The closing portion of the lesson deals with the beauty of God's forgiving love. Upon his repentant children God will have compassion, and he will cast their sins into the depths of the sea. So Micah hopes for salvation from God, even unto the uttermost. May we find pardon at his right hand and grace to help in time of need.

Nothing is as cheery as the song of the meadow lark in the rain.

Marilou Hoag of Marion is the new queen of something; we've been rooting for her!

Tyrone Power, we read, is to play in the picture "Lydia Bailey." Is he to play Lydia?

Headline—"Conductor Hopes to Play in Vatican." The fireman will stick to the second diesel.

A news item says that Margaret Truman's concert tour has been cancelled. . . . another whistle stop.

"A swim suit should flatter," a stylist says. None could be flatter than some we see around the pools.

Corn is three weeks later than some seasons. But give it warm sun it'll be as high as an elephant's eye by July.

Oh for a potato patch and a contract for Uncle Sam to buy them at $2 a bushel and give them back for nothing!

We've revised our plan of having our son become president. We believe being second man on a diesel locomotive is a better job.

Leroy Crist lives somewhere where $20 bills are plentiful enough to hide in boys' suits; at least that's what Leroy did. And then the kid went to school and handed out the $20 bills promisingly.

TO REPAIR ROADS

Some 65 miles of county roadway in Fayette county is to be repaired this year. Local stone and gravel will be used and much blacktop.

Dale Carnegie

Author of "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

Sound Mind Makes a Sound Body

TODAY'S PIECE is inspired by a woman who lives in Flushing, New York, and who requests that we use only her initials, L. B. Mrs. L. B.'s husband has been ill a long time, not down and out, but always feeling bad. Eventually he developed nervous indigestion (which usually comes from worry). Month after month he frequented the doctors' offices, trying first one and then the other. He got no better; if anything, he was consistently getting worse. Finally, he consulted a chiropractor who gave him treatments for a couple of months. But still there was no improvement in his condition. Yes, he could see that he was not only not improving, he was steadily becoming a chronic invalid.

Then one day Mrs. L. B. read a list of books in a newspaper that doctors recommended for nervous patients, patients suffering from nervous disorders of any kind. She went right out and bought some of those books. Why, they didn't seem in the least like medical books. Instead they were just "common-sense books." But she read them, and she persuaded her husband to read them. This wasn't difficult to do for he was like the proverbial drowning man grasping for a straw. He was sick of being sick!

What particular thought do you think carried through for Mr. L. B.? Just this: To live one day at a time, and not to worry about the past nor to take heed for the future.

"Why, when he started that course," says Mrs. L. B., "he at once began to improve. He became less nervous, he discarded the idea newly developed that he must have heart trouble, and he even enjoyed playing with our six-year-old son whose noise and activities so recently had unnerved him."

"In an amazingly short time my husband was completely cured. I hope our experience may help some of your readers whose trouble, though maybe unknown to them, is purely mental. We have found to our great benefit that when the mental attitude is right little will go wrong with the physical self."

CLARENCE J. BROWN Writes With a Buckeye In Congress

The house will transact but little legislative business this week, as there will be an adjournment over Memorial day. On Wednesday Secretary of State Acheson was to make an off-the-record report to members of congress on conferences he attended on his recent trip to Europe.

The Ohio delegation in congress were luncheon guests of an Ohio Farm Bureau committee here in Washington last Wednesday. Mrs. Roy Titus of Bellefontaine, Walter Sollars of Washington, C. H., and Walter Williams of Wilmington were in the group which also visited President Truman and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. The Ohio farm leaders reported the first returns from a state-wide poll of farmers. This survey shows only 15 percent of Ohio farmers support the Brannan plan by name; 13 percent favor the present agriculture act, while an additional 50 percent approve of it with certain amendments. Thirty-two percent of the farmers polled are opposed to any government plan or control for agriculture; 65 percent favored storing enough storable crops to stabilize supply; 50 percent approved distributing food surpluses to state and county relief agencies; 75 percent want the government to promote research to find new uses for agricultural surpluses; and 58 percent desire the establishment of more farm

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Mrs. Grace Burkhardt of Berryville, Ark.: "I remember when you could buy big, heart-shaped squares of 'Lady Gum' with a little picture pasted on it. I guess it was just sweetened paraffin and it wasn't very good, but there was surely a lot of it for a penny."

Mrs. Vera Norton of Mesa, Ariz.: "I can remember going to the mill several miles from our home with a load of wheat, and bringing back large, heavy sacks of flour."

From Mrs. Weppler of Coshocton, O.: "I remember when my mother cooked soap from meat rinds, grease and lye from wood ashes mixed with some soft soap. She not only made soft soap but all the hard soap we used for household purposes. We never bought a bar of laundry or toilet soap until 1907."

From L. Hornecker of LaCrescenta, Calif.: "I remember the deep snow Illinois used to have, 60 years ago. Around the warm wood stove on those cold nights we ate apples and popcorn, popped in a wire popper over the red coals in the stove."

From Mrs. Mary Stewart of Chicago: "I remember when grocery stores had several large, black, janned tin boxes with various teas—oolong, gunpowder, green Japan, English breakfast and mixed. Ten or 15 cents worth lasted a long time."

MOSCOW LOUDLY APPLAUDS

cooperatives. Only 15 percent believe in marketing quotas to hold down farm production, while but 11 percent want to maintain farm prices at home and sell at lower prices abroad. In addition, 27 percent oppose any government price guarantee, while the balance favor various price support programs under differing conditions. Only 25 percent farm prices should be supported at 100 percent of parity.

Late last week the house turned down President Truman's request to extend the selective service act for three years, and, instead passed a different bill, to be known as the manpower registration act, under which 18-year-olds will register and be nominally classified for future military service in case of emergency. However, no one can be conscripted or inducted into service by order of the president or the military, until and unless the Congress passes new legislation ordering such inductions. In addition, the president cannot call either the national guard or the reserve forces into federal service unless congress so orders.

President Truman will not get an extension of the present control act, as he demanded. Instead the house committee on banking and currency last week reported a bill which would automatically bring an end to federal rent control in all areas which fail to provide for local rent control by Dec. 31 of this year. Should such local action be taken, the areas affected would have until June 30, 1951, to any federal rent control authority, that the fate of the pending bill is in doubt.

The famous team of "Bob and Martha"—Senator and Mrs. Robert A. Taft—has been temporarily broken up as a result of Mrs. Taft's illness. She is in a Washington hospital suffering from a temporary indisposition. Her doctors have ordered her to cancel all speaking engagements and take a complete rest for the next two or three months.

About every time on of the high administration officials announces this country and its government are free of Communists, something happens. One morning last week Attorney General McGrath boasted publicly that the communists were all cleaned out. That afternoon the FBI arrested Harry Gold, a Philadelphia biochemist, as a Russian spy and accomplice of Britain's Klaus Fuchs, the convicted atomic bomb spy. Gold is said to have confessed, and a number of other traitors and spies may soon be picked up. In New York a federal grand jury is going into the case of William Remington, department of commerce employee whose loyalty was "cleared" a year or so ago by a government loyalty board—that is, until the house unAmerican activities committee brought forth some startling new evidence recently.

Following charges in congress that "the fix is on again," it appears that a complete review of the famous Amerasia case will be forced. It may be remembered that during the war government under-cover agents discovered that a very small magazine in New York had a very large photographing and photostating laboratory in which were found hundreds of top-secret documents including American invasion plans for Japan, information on the then secret atomic bomb, and other important papers. Under very peculiar conditions, some high-ranking federal officials closely connected with the case escaped prosecution, while two minor figures were fined $500 and $250,000, respectively. Now the congress and the American people

WASHINGTON REPORT

BY SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

THIS week the Supreme Court of the United States upheld the constitutionality of one of the most important provisions of the Taft-Hartley law. That law requires that no labor union shall have access to the remedies provided through the National Labor Relations Board unless each officer files an affidavit "that he is not a member of the Communist party or affiliated with such party, and that he does not believe in, and is not a member of or supports any organization that believes in or teaches, the overthrow of the United States Government by force or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods." The Supreme Court held that the requirement of such an oath is no interference with freedom of speech or any of the other rights guaranteed by the Constitution. The Court said that Congress had reason to find that the Communism of the officers was likely to bring about political strikes unrelated to the economic welfare of the men, and that officers who were Communists have tempting opportunities to commit acts believed harmful to the national economy.

The so-called Communist oath provision of the Taft-Hartley law has proved itself an effective means of reducing the power of Communism in labor unions.

Extensive testimony was given in 1949 showing that in a number of cases Communist-dominated unions were displaced by other unions because they could not qualify under the Taft-Hartley law. In many other cases, Communist officers were forced to resign so that the union could take advantage of the law. Communist unions were finally so weakened that the CIO is able to expel them and, with the assistance of the Taft-Hartley law, replace them with Communist-free unions.

Nearly all the labor leaders have signed the oath except John L. Lewis, whose power is so great that he hardly ever needs to avail himself of the rights given to unions under the law.

A NEW problem has now arisen because many of the officers already regarded as Communists by other labor leaders have now signed the oath that they are not Communists. Some 23 cases have were wanting to know "why" and "how." Senator Knowland has introduced a resolution to amend the constitution to authorize the governors of the various states to been sent to the Department of Justice by the Labor Department for investigation as to whether perjury has been committed. Up to this time, the Department has not filed a single charge.

It is quite true that it is not an easy task to prove that a man is a Communist, but the Department succeeded in doing so in the recent Communist trial in New York, in the Marzani case and others, and it is unbelievable that the FBI does not have extensive information regarding these labor union officers.

A representative of the Department of Justice recently excused the Department on the ground that the oath related only to the time when the oath was made, and therefore the Department would have difficulty proving that he was then a Communist and evidence that he had been a Communist in the past would not be sufficient. This seems to me the most subtlest of excuses. I would not be in favor of an oath barring a man because he had been a Communist at some time in the past, because certainly men may change their minds. I doubt if such a provision would be constitutional. The oath in the Taft-Hartley law in this respect is exactly the same as the oath required from government employees.

THE truth is that the Department of Justice has done nothing to support the Taft-Hartley law from the beginning. Its decisions on union welfare funds and the checkoff have nullified various provisions of the Taft-Hartley law.

Its conduct of the contempt case against the United Mine Workers could not have been weaker if it had deliberately desired to bring about an adverse decision. In the last analysis, it is pretty hopeless to enact laws if the executive refuses to enforce them.

The action of the Supreme Court, however, will undoubtedly strengthen the demand that the law be enforced, and it will strengthen the hands of those labor union leaders who are now taking drastic action to expel Communists from their ranks.

appointment members of congress in case the duly elected representatives should be killed in a sudden atomic-bomb raid on the nation's capital. The senate last week adopted

Successful Parenthood

BY MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

DO YOU SAVE UP for Janie's music lessons and begrudge Tom the money for an old car he can take apart and put together again? And do you listen sympathetically to Janie's missed notes on the piano or screechy tones on the violin, but scold Tom for greasy finger prints on door knobs and the black-rimmed wash basin after a bout of tinkering with his car?

What are we getting at? Simply that Tom's mechanical aptitude is as deserving of your support as his sister's yearnings to become a musician. In our present civilization, the technician and the skilled mechanic make our complicated living possible. So instead of trying to turn such a talent into a professional or scholarly groove, it should be developed from childhood. For mechanically minded children, like those who are musical or are gifted in painting or writing, lay the foundation of their interests and training at home.

How do you recognize a mechanical turn to your child's mind? He will want to build and take apart and put together. If he is given construction toys, simple at first and more elaborate later on, much of this need will be met. If he lacks play materials that satisfy his curiosity about what makes the wheels go round, watch out for the family clock, or your toaster or vacuum cleaner!

When he is old enough to handle tools with reasonable care he should have good ones not flimsy toys that frustrate him by breaking at a crucial moment in an experiment. And a work bench with some space of his own is a must for the inventive young mechanic. Having his own tools and a place to keep them is the only way to encourage orderliness. This is important, for if your son makes a career in mechanics he will have to be neat—a sloppy worker doesn't rate very high in a busy plant.

Another trait to encourage is the ability to accept failure as a lesson in what not to do. Not all experiments work out, but even the busts can teach valuable lessons if the child is able to rise above his disappointment. So don't be too critical because of wasted materials, nor too sympathetic either. Just be interested and help the puzzled experimenter figure out why he didn't succeed this time.

A good foundation in arithmetic is a prerequisite for a career in mechanical engineering. Mathematics isn't likely to be too hard a subject for a child with a genuine mechanical turn, but in the course of his grade school work he may encounter a poor teacher or two. It is well to be prepared to give some help at home, either parental or a little tutoring, so there won't be weak spots in his skill with figures.

Later on, when school courses in shop are available, make it your business to consult with the vocational adviser—both to insure that your child elects the most useful ones, and also to keep him from neglecting the cultural side of his schooling.

the conference report on the ECA—or foreign aid—authorization bill after a bitter fight over the $35 million item to start the president's point four program of giving American economic and financial assistance to the backward areas of the world. The total ECA authorization was $250 million less than requested by the president, and this amount may be reduced further when the actual appropriation is made.
